Teachers' Guide

ETVO SCHEDULE

MAY-JUNE 1969

Educational Television Branch
ONTARIO DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
1670 Bayview Avenue, Toronto 17

HALL-DENNIS SPECIAL

Due to unforeseen scheduling difficulties, the Hall-Dennis Special will not be seen on May 7 as announced in the April Schedule. Programing will revert to its original format as recorded in this May – June Schedule.

A further announcement will be issued when telecast time for the Hall-Dennis Special has been rescheduled.

Student Production Competition
ETVO Branch
Ontario Department of Education

The ETVO Branch will be televising a series called "Creative Talent" during the 1969-70 season. This series will consist of programs created from original film or video tape productions made by students in Ontario. Please inform your students of this coming series which will directly involve them in the television medium. More detailed information is being mailed to all principals.

The CBC Ontario Network includes the following TV stations:

BARRIE	CKVR-TV	Channel 3

1969–1970 ETVO TEACHERS' GUIDES

The following is a tentative listing of the projected ETVO series for the school year, 1969–1970. Teachers' Guides will be produced for each series. A final listing of the total ETVO series for the coming season will be published in the ETVO SYNOPSIS, to be distributed to all principals before the end of May.

The SYNOPSIS will contain summary statements describing each series, and will be the basis for ordering the quantities of Teachers' Guides required by your school. Order forms will accompany the SYNOPSIS. You may wish to let your principal know which Teachers' Guides you would like to receive.

Teachers will note that many new productions are planned for the coming year, together with repeat programs of proven quality and usefulness. There will be over 900 ETVO programs telecast for the schools of Ontario for the new school year.

We welcome your suggestions for improving the new Teachers' Guides. The centre-fold forms are intended as one means of giving us feed-back on the current Guides. Please feel free to send additional evaluations or letters with suggestions for improving these Guides.

How ETVO Programs are Produced

In the final analysis, the usefulness of television in education depends upon the quality of its programing. Quality programing cannot be defined easily because it is used in various subject areas for widely differing audiences. Sometimes it provides information; always it seeks to foster further inquiry and encourage discussion and investigation. It must be educationally appropriate and artistically pleasing.

There are basic principles that can help in program development, but there are no blueprints. We are not seeking a pattern for excellence in programing. Program development is a continuous adventure in creative design.

Program planning must be done well in advance of the broadcast dates to permit adequate time for preparation and production of Teachers' Guides or other supporting material.

Deciding how broadcast time is to be allocated to the various educational interests at the many different levels of the school system, is one of the first decisions to be made. Many sources are tapped to discover what priorities should be established. Educational Television Co-ordinators and Program Consultants, who spend a great deal of time in classrooms, often reflect the requests of teachers. An Advisory Council, representing the various sections of the Department of Education and a Consultative Committee with representation from the Ontario School Trustees Council, the Ontario Association of School Superintendents and Directors and the Ontario Teachers' Federation, review suggestions and make recommendations to the Director of the Television Branch.

Finally, each Assistant Superintendent is asked to develop outlines for the programs to be produced in his area of responsibility. To achieve this, a team or committee of educators from different parts of the province is usually assembled for each series. Programs must be planned by educators who are themselves students: they are continually seeking more information about the way children and young people grow and learn; they seek new knowledge in subject areas for which they carry responsibility; they are alert to changing conditions in the world and how these changes influence the young. Many of the educators who help to plan programs are teachers who come directly from the classrooms and are, therefore, in a good position to ensure that programs are appropriately produced for a particular viewing audience.

Working along with educators in program planning, there must be producers who understand the unique quality of television as a means of communication. It is important to know a variety of ways whereby television can involve the viewer; what kind of artistry will capture the imagination of the viewer and encourage the desire to search elsewhere for more information; what techniques will permit the viewer to see each important detail more clearly.

A script writer joins the planning team at an early stage in order to become involved in the content. This is necessary to enable him to write appropriate continuity for the outline prepared by the educators. After the program outlines and scripts are approved, the producer, leading a production team, assumes responsibility for production of the program.

An Education Supervisor, who has been involved in the development of the series from its very beginning, joins the production team. He must see that the intent of the committee is, in fact, reflected in the final production. He also prepares the Teachers' Guide. This Guide is the classroom teacher's tool to help him decide if and how he will use the program in his own classroom.

This is a thumb-nail sketch of how ETV programing is developed. Each program reflects the best efforts of a team of well informed, creative resource people who are bringing television into the classrooms to provide one more avenue for learning.
